

a chance. Warden Smith declared that in his opinion Frank's assailant, William Green, is a maniac.

"My investigation is by no means completed," said the warden, "but I do not believe that the attack on Frank was the result of a plot."

Frank's left jugular vein was severed.

"Am I going to die?" Frank asked the doctors after they had sewn up his wound. "I am not afraid. There is nothing between me and God. I hope the man who did this will be forgiven."

Frank's assailant, William Green, forty-five years old, is serving a life term for murder, following conviction in Muscogee county June 13, 1913. Green used a crude but sharp, homemade butcher knife.

Frank, Green, and about one hundred other prisoners were in the dormitory on the second floor of a two-story building at the farm. They had gone to bed at 9 o'clock, the regular hour. Two guards were stationed at the two entrances to the room, and the lights were turned down dim.

CRAWLED UNDER THREE COTS.

Frank's cot was about forty feet from the entrance. Green's cot was four cots further along in the line. No one saw Green enter, but he must have slipped out of his cot, crawled under the three between him and Frank and risen by Frank's side with the butcher knife in hand.

Frank was asleep on his right side. As Green struck, the man in the next cot cried out. The two guards started toward Green. Prisoners leaped up from their cots. Before Green could strike again he was seized and the knife wrested from him.

Frank sank back on his cot in a pool of blood. Green was rushed to Warden Smith and is now in iron in a solitary cell in the basement of the dormitory building.

Frank was lifted from his cot and taken to the operating room, next to the sleeping room. He has never lost consciousness. Two physicians, inmates of the prison, were in the building, and gave him immediate medical attention. One of them is Dr. W. J. McNaughton, serving a life term for murder, convicted of killing a citizen of Swainboro named Sanders. The other is Dr. L. M. Harris, convicted in Columbus of another crime.

Prison Physician Galled.

While these two doctors worked over Frank, a hurry call was sent to Dr. Guy D. Compton, prison physician, at his home, half a mile away. Dr. Compton arrived within a few minutes. The three physicians at once began an attempt to stitich up Frank's throat. It took over two hours.

Frank never lost consciousness. The Times correspondent entered the room after the operation and asked Frank how he felt.

"Pretty well," said Frank, and attempted to smile.

Dr. Compton stated Frank might recover, although his head is cut nearly off. While the jugular vein is severed, the windpipe and spinal cord are untouched. He had lost much blood, which, in his poor physical condition resulting from long confinement, makes his chances for recovery smaller.

The knife Green used is said by Warden Smith to have been obtained on the farm Saturday afternoon, doubtless when Green was assisting in killing several hogs, the prisoners always being served fresh meat on Sunday.

It is Warden Smith's belief that Green concealed the knife about his clothing and lay awake for two hours awaiting his chance.

At Farm Three Weeks.

Frank had been at the farm exactly three weeks at 4 o'clock this morning, having been removed from the Fulton county tower June 20 by Sheriff Wheeler Mangum and two deputies, who took him to Macon and thence thirty miles across country by automobile to the prison farm. Announcement of the commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment for the murder of Mary Phagan was made five hours later by John M. Stanton, then governor.

The prisoners are allowed the freedom of the floor until 8 o'clock, and the lights are turned down promptly at 9

ASSAILANT OF FRANK HAS KILLED TWO MEN

William Green Known as "Bad Man" at Columbus—Convicted of Selling Liquor.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 18.—William Green, the convict who attacked Leo M. Frank, at the state prison farm near Milledgeville, has killed two men and has borne a bad reputation since his boyhood.

Green is serving a life sentence for the murder of D. Kitchens, a young insurance agent. He shot Kitchens down on the streets here on March 9, 1913, because Kitchens had remonstrated with him for cursing and abusing some young boys, who had angered him by laughing at him as he passed the corner in a buggy.

Green went back to his home, secured a revolver, returned to where Kitchens was standing on the street and shot him through the forehead without a word of warning.

At his preliminary hearing on March 14, 1913, Green was bound over for murder without bond. He remained in jail until May 25, 1913, when he was put on trial. During this time he feigned insanity and refused to talk to anyone.

Dr. Jones, superintendent of the State sanatorium at Milledgeville, and Dr. F. L. Cooby, of this city, were appointed a commission to examine him. He would not answer any of their questions, but after carefully looking him over they gave it as their opinion that he was not insane.

At 1 o'clock this morning he was still on the operating table, but gradually growing weaker. Doctors had not succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, although they had checked it. They admitted his chances for recovery were decreasing.

At 1:15 o'clock this morning the physicians had completed sewing up the wound in Frank's throat. They had joined the jugular vein and they believed the operation was successful. Frank was taken to the hospital. He was still conscious.

Some animosity had been shown Frank since he arrived at the prison farm, but the prison officials stated today that they had not thought for an instant that an attack would be made on him. After Frank's wound had been dressed he turned to the physicians attending him and said:

"Am I going to die?"

"We don't know," said Dr. G. M. Compton, the prison surgeon. "You are in a serious condition, and will have to be quiet."

Mrs. Frank at Farm.

Mrs. Frank happened to be at the State farm, a guest at the home of Superintendent Smith, at the time that the attack was made on her husband.

Superintendent Smith himself informed Mrs. Frank of the attack that had been made upon her husband.

"Horrible, horrible!" shrieked the woman.

Mrs. Frank became hysterical. She soon rallied, however, and was taken to the operating room where doctors were at work on her husband. She remained remarkably composed, held her husband's hand and conversed with him while the doctors were putting in the stitches.

At 2:15 o'clock this morning Dr. Compton, the prison surgeon, stated that Frank's chances for recovery are slight.

"There is danger of blood poisoning," said the doctor. "There is danger of the stitches in the jugular vein slipping, either one of which might cause death."

Warden Smith gave out the following bulletin on Frank's condition just after noon:

"Frank is resting as well as could be expected under the circumstances. There necessarily is much pain accompanying such a wound as was inflicted on the prisoner, but Frank is bearing it remarkably well. He has not been able to sleep any yet. He retains consciousness, and could talk, but physicians have forbidden him to speak. He is quietly on his back and frequently smiles at those around his bedside."

Three Thousand Men Ready to Walk Out, Says Machinists' Head

BRIDGEPORT, July 18.—Three thousand machinists will walk out early next week, according to J. J. Keppeler, international vice president of the machinists' union.

Mediation, it is thought, will not be tried again, following a long conference between the union heads and Major G. W. Penfield, head of the Remington Arms Plant, in which both sides refused flatly to recede from the stand they had taken.

Either the millwrights will go to work in the Remington plant tomorrow under machinists union rules and an eight-hour day, or every machinist in Bridgeport will walk out, said Keppeler today.

Garment Workers' Strike Will Involve 350,000 If Called on Tuesday

NEW YORK, July 18.—A strike involving 350,000 garment workers east of Chicago will be started Tuesday morning, if no agreement is reached at the adjourned joint conference of Amalgamated Clothing Workers officials and American Clothing Manufacturers officials at the United Hebrew Charities building Monday, according to President Sidney Hillman, of the Children's Garment Workers.

Notice of a strike order for tomorrow was issued to 18,000 children's garment workers, but, according to President Hillman, "this order was temporarily suspended pending the outcome of new developments at the joint conference Saturday afternoon."

Should no settlement be made tomorrow the 18,000 children's garment workers are expected to join the 21,000 garment workers already out.

Should a settlement be made with the clothing manufacturers' association a strike will be called, Hillman said, on contractors not belonging to the association.

Should no settlement be made with any of the employers, Hillman said, 150,000 garment workers in New York will walk out.

If the New York strike is called and the manufacturers send contract work to other cities, Hillman asserted, the general strike involving 350,000 garment workers throughout the United States east of Chicago will be called.

Both manufacturers and union officials Saturday said they believed there still is a chance that the general strike may be averted.

EX-SENATOR BURTON PLANS WESTERN TRIP

Boom for Presidency Likely to Grow During Ohioan's Speaking Tour.

Former Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio will soon leave for a tour of the Pacific Coast and will make a number of speeches which probably will add to the growth of the Burton Presidential boom.

Mr. Burton was in Washington yesterday and while here accepted the suggestion of friends and political supporters that he make a swing around the circle.

The Burton Presidential boom has assumed formidable size, his friends believe, since his recent return from South America and a tour of the West will be instrumental in acquainting that vital political battle ground with the drawing qualities of the Ohio candidate.

Mr. Burton addressed the chambers of commerce of Philadelphia and Harrisburg during the last week. He will make several speeches in Ohio this week and will start on his tour of the West on July 27, making his first speech at Chicago. He will visit Helena, Spokane, Tacoma, Portland, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake, Boise City, Cheyenne, Denver, Colorado Springs, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and other Western cities during the next sixty days.

Director Ralph Corners Supply of Rare Pigments

Director Ralph, of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, is today a "trust." He has cornered all the visible supply of a good many pigments which are necessary to the operation of his big plant, including Chinese blue, lake red, chrome green and a few others.

Some time ago the director, realizing that, as most of these materials are produced in Germany, the time would come when no more could be obtained, began to make a little corner all his own.

A trip to New York a few days ago resulted in his purchase of the entire available supply, amounting in value to about $100,000.

GIRL DEAD, NINE HURT IN MOTOR CAR WRECK

CLIFTON, N. J., July 18.—One girl was killed and nine men and women badly hurt early today when the seven-passenger touring automobile driven by Elmer Nieder, of Newark, was wrecked near here.

The victims were dragged from beneath the heavy motor car by members of the Youngstown Golf Club. Miss Beale Beaumont, nineteen, of Newark, died on the way to the hospital.

The injured include Albert Schleisch, twenty-one, Newark; Ethel Godwin, twenty-one, Clifton; Ruth Anderson, Mona Cotten, Helen Flynn, Harry Williams, Charles Rogers, Bert Ross, and Elmer Nieder, all of Newark.

Immediately after Miss Beaumont died, the party was taken to the Passaic police station where they were temporarily held pending investigation.

According to the police, Elmer Nieder, who was driving the car, was not hurt. He suggested that they have a ride. After several hours Nieder headed the car toward Newark. He says he was going at a moderate speed when it turned turtle.
